Terme di Saturnia

Tuscany

The water at Saturnia's natural hot springs glows an almost unearthly blue, bubbling gently as steam rises from the waterfalls on a cold winter's day. Tuscany's original wellness destination (we're talking 3,000 years of spa-seeking pilgrims) is still much in demand today by those in the know, attracting Italians and out-of-season visitors during the winter months. The water is a heavenly 37.5°C all year round, and is believed to be rich in energy, mineral salts and vitamins. If you can be prized from the cossetting springs, there's also an 18-hole golf course, award-winning indoor spa and on-site restaurant.
